

FUTURE DIRECTIONS BALANCED FUND - WHOLESAL

Provides exposure to a diverse portfolio of growth-oriented asset classes, actively managed using dynamic asset allocation and a multi-manager strategy

Performance summary

- > The Fund returned 6.9% for the March quarter as share markets climbed higher.
- > The Fund maintains the underweight position held in Australian shares favouring Asian shares.
- > We lessened the active exposure to foreign currency during the quarter, as the Australian dollar moves towards our medium term expectations.

Investment approach

The Fund is designed to access a mix of asset classes and blend specialist investment managers from around the world, with the aim of maximising returns and managing levels of risk. We take a four-stage investment approach - setting objectives, targeted manager selection, portfolio construction and implementation, and ongoing portfolio and manager review.

Schroders Investment Management

Style/focus – Quantitative/ style blend

Schroders uses a global dynamic blend (GDB) strategy, a blend of the manager's global value, quality and core (enhanced index) approaches. Schroders' investment process is determined by top-down market valuation, cyclical and risk indicators and is supported by bottom-up insights that naturally emerge from managing the underlying strategies. Schroders differentiated quantitative approach and process for tactically allocating between investment styles are considered attractive features of the GDB approach. The Multi-Manager team has a strong degree of conviction in the team behind the process, led by Justin Abercrombie. Abercrombie and his team are experienced quantitative specialists who have linked the process to sound investment concepts and displayed a proactive commitment to continuous improvement.

> FUTURE DIRECTIONS BALANCED FUND - WHOLESALE

Performance and activity

The FD Balanced Fund returned 6.9% for the March quarter of 2015 as Australian and international share markets rallied. The Fund outperformed its neutral benchmark by 0.6% for the period, with manager selection and dynamic asset allocation calls adding value.

The relative performance of our underlying managers had the most measurable impact on the Fund's excess return for the quarter. In particular, the Fund's Australian shares and unlisted/alternative asset portfolios contributed strongly. The very strong run in Australian shares over the quarter was aided by manager selection in financials, which outperformed the broader market as investors continue to search for yield. The Fund's alternative asset holdings, in particular, our investment in absolute return manager AQR, was also rewarding; this strategy, which is designed to generate absolute returns regardless of market direction, benefitted from the strong trends in currencies (long US dollar) and commodities (short energy).

Despite the overweight to European shares, the off-benchmark exposure to Chinese shares, and the high conviction underweight to fixed interest having significant positive effects on relative returns; these were partially offset by a below benchmark allocation to Australian shares, and overweights to cash and absolute return defensive strategies.

The Fund's foreign currency position – expressed primarily through investment in unhedged international shares – was a notable contributor to the total return. The Australian dollar fell significantly over the quarter, down more than 6% versus the US dollar, driven by falls in commodity and oil prices, as well as a cut in the official interest rate. We have maintained a higher weighting to foreign currency which, given these currency movements, further enhanced the Fund's relative return in the March quarter.

Fund positioning and outlook

We continue to hold an underweight to Australian shares preferring international and Asian shares, as valuations remain attractive, particularly relative to bonds; which remain underweight preferring cash in the defensive component on the Fund. The Fund took up an above average weight to absolute return growth strategies over the quarter through investment in manager KKR Prisma; as we seek to provide the Fund with exposure to differentiated sources of return compared to traditional markets such as shares and bonds. Finally, the Fund reduced its foreign currency exposure over the three months, however still retains an overweight on expectations that the Australian dollar will continue to retreat over the medium term.

Investment objective

To provide a rate of return of 3.5% above inflation after management costs over a 5 year period. To provide a total return (income and capital growth) after costs and before tax, above the Fund's performance benchmark.
