The AMP Balanced Fund posted a negative absolute return in the March quarter, following a correction in global equity markets. Investor confidence was checked in the latter half of the period as fears of a potential global trade war increased. This saw investors shift towards more safe-haven assets by quarter end.

In addition to geopolitical trade issues, domestic and international equity performance was also constrained by concerns around the tightening of monetary policy in the US. However, the depreciation in the Australian dollar compared to major currencies helped reduce the magnitude of the loss from international equities for Australian investors (unhedged international equities generated +0.8% over the quarter in Australian dollar terms compared to the hedged return of -2.3%). In Australia, weaker commodity prices coupled with the Royal Commission on the banking sector were an added drag on domestic equities performance (down by -3.9%) relative to global equities. The allocation towards Australian fixed income however, contributed positively to performance, reflecting the safe-haven demand for bonds as equity markets weakened. The other bright spot during the quarter was emerging market equities which rose 0.8% in local currency terms.

Whilst trading conditions are likely to continue exhibit higher volatility, we continue to believe that the outlook for equity markets remains positive supported by healthy global growth and accommodative monetary policy. As such we remain comfortable in maintaining a bias towards international equities. Our overall bond position remains underweight in favour of cash as we expect bonds to remain vulnerable to any evidence of inflationary pressure or monetary tightening.
